

* IHU Econ Students' Success Stories ****

My name is Papaevangelou Spyridon,

I began my academic studies in 2017 at the Serres Campus, at the Department of Finance and Accounting of the Technical and Vocational School of Central Macedonia, from where I graduated in 2021. Subsequently, I attended the specified additional courses and thus completed my studies in 2023 at the Department of Economics of the International Hellenic University.

My studies at the Department of Economics were an important asset for my professional development and contributed substantially to the completion of my goals. Through courses such as Applied Econometrics, Financial Accounting, Auditing and Statistics II, I acquired solid knowledge and developed analytical and quantitative skills, which allow me to approach financial data and business challenges methodically and effectively.

The academic environment was particularly supportive, with professors willing to guide and strengthen the effort of each student. At the same time, the University offered a multitude of seminars and educational activities, strengthening the connection between theoretical knowledge and practical application. My experience at DI.PAE was particularly creative and constructive and is a choice that I would make again with absolute confidence.

In 2023, I started my postgraduate program at the University of Macedonia, in the Department of Applied Accounting and Auditing, which I completed in 2025, thus further strengthening my scientific training, as well as my specialization, in the field of accounting and auditing.

Today, I work as a Class 2 Tax Accountant, having the opportunity to apply in practice the knowledge and skills I acquired during my studies, with the aim of providing responsible and quality services in the field of accounting and taxation.

In conclusion, I would like to express my warm thanks to the Honorable President of the Department, Professor Persephone Polychronidou, who at the same time did me the honor of supervising my Master's thesis. As well as warm thanks to all members of the academic and administrative staff, for the continuous support and valuable advice they provided us throughout our studies.
